

Age your way

Like you, we believe getting older is a privilege. But it's not all smooth sailing, we know. Ageing comes with its own set of challenges. That's where we come in. Because while you can't predict the future, a little bit of planning goes a long way.

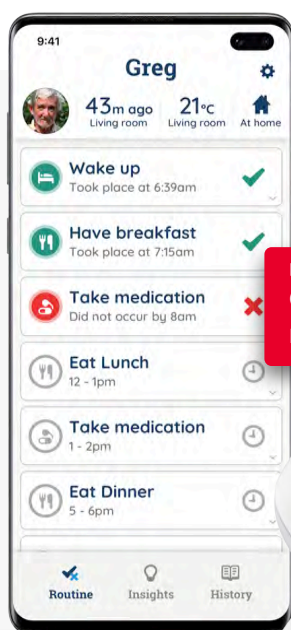

Our Billy activity monitor gives you the tools to prep and plan for that change. Discreet sensors. A smartphone app. And the ability to share your activity with loved ones 24/7 through the app.

Embrace older age with the confidence you've always known.

Independence for you. Peace of mind for your family.

We believe that when it comes to making a plan for getting older, the old adage rings true: Home is best.

Perfect for anyone who wants to maintain their independence, and live at home for longer. Billy provides insights to let you and your family know that everything is fine, or if there's something worth exploring further.

Greg missed his medication.

Tech with a personal touch

Built for you. Billy uses smart sensors to build a picture of your daily routine. It's individually configured for you, and the way you live.

A truly smart app. We kept it simple. But there's a lot happening under the hood. Billy proactively spots changes in your routine that happen gradually, over days, weeks or months.

Share the data. Through the app, loved ones can see when you're up and about. So no more kids worrying about whether you've taken your medication. And if anything is wrong, they'll get an alert to let them know.

Good health, not emergencies

Families not call centres: Billy engages your family to help you maintain your independence and lifestyle at home.

Dignity and lifestyle: Set and forget. Once Billy is up and running, you're free to just go about living your life. There are no buttons to push, no batteries to charge and nothing to wear.

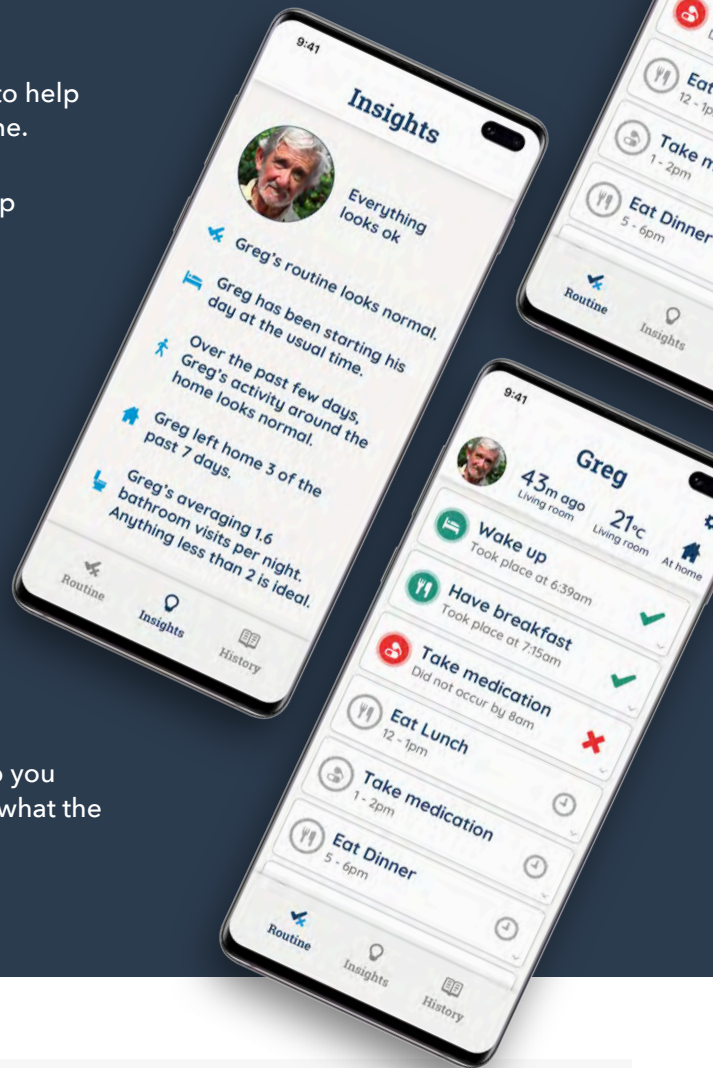

Focus on wellbeing not emergencies: By confirming positive routines, Billy keeps the focus on remaining healthy and independent.

Early Insight: If things do begin to change, Billy can let your family know, stopping small hiccups from becoming larger emergencies that can have a lasting effect on your independence.

Smart analytics: Billy looks at how your routine is changing over time and uses that information to help you better understand changes in your health, as well as what the changes might mean.
